

We have evidence from surveys and from participants ' written reflections, but so far we have not collected much formal quantitative data. Our participants report engaging in skills and practices they have learned in our professional development sessions, but we have not documented them through numbers. That said, we have participants who would be glad to talk about their experience and share how they have applied what they learned through RIWP professional development.

Going forward, we can collect surveys, ask participants in the Summer Institute and Advanced Institute to provide their SLO ' s and evaluations, and collect student assessment data for the schools and districts where we offer Embedded Institutes.
